Assessors plan inside jobs

By WENDY HANSCOM

Greenwood property owners can expect two new assessors knocking on their doors sometime in the next 12 months.

The town is undertaking a full-scale revaluation, and field assessors Dennis Berube and Paul Binette will soon be out photographing properties and measuring homes, businesses, garages, sheds, pools, decks, additions and anything else taxable.

The assessing team, of O'Donnell Associates in Auburn, will also ask homeowners to let them look around inside.

"We'll make exterior and interior inspections of properties," John O'Donnell said. "If we don't find people home, we'll make a second call at a later time. Going inside helps us gauge the relative quality of the workmanship and materials used in the construction of the home. It's very helpful to go inside, because you get to talk to someone who knows the building. We also get to talk about the program and what we're trying to accomplish."

But O'Donnell said even if the assessors do not go inside a building. the valuation should still be fair.

"We don't have a problem with gauging the value of a building from the outside," O'Donnell said.
"We look at thousands of houses from the outside every year. We're pretty good at knowing what we're looking at."

BACK BEHIND BARS, AND LOVING IT-Crescent Park School thirdgrader Sheena Hunt offers up a big smile through the jungle-gym bars last week on the first day of school. SAD 44's 1,071 students returned to classes last Wednesday. More than 900 of those students are located at the Telstar complex this year. CPS has set up school in the former teachers' parking lot. CPS principal David Murphy said so far school-life in the portable village has presented no noteworthy problems. "With the exception of lunch being late on day one," Murphy said, "we haven't even had the problems we usually have on the opening week of school. Last year at Crescent Park it took over 30 minutes to load the buses and get them off-site on the first day. This year, it took us less than ten minutes on the first day. We've fine tuned it down to less than five minutes now."

Booters off to a strong start

Telstar High School's soccer team is off to a winning start.

In the season opener Friday, the Rebels shut out Mountain Valley Conference opponent Leavitt 4-0.

Coach Bob Remington said the team is playing well and should put up a good fight against all its MVC

"We should be contenders for a league title," Remington said. "We're trying to develop a balanced attack and improve in all areas."

One thing that may help the Rebels along the road to the MVC title or Western Maine Class C playoffs is depth.

Bingo hall a no go

Passamaquoddys no longer interested in Albany site

By WENDY HANSCOM

The Passamaquoddy Indian tribe is no longer interested in setting up a 1,000-seat, high-stakes bingo hall in Albany.

A local backer of the hall said he was disappointed by the news, but not really surprised.

"I haven't heard anything and my lawyers haven't heard anything," Earl Tyler of Bethel said. "We've been writing letters, but have never had a reply. It's business I guess. I wouldn't be surprised if that was the story, they haven't been doing anything, but I wish they would give us the courtesy to reply."

A change in Passamaquoddy leadership may have iced the project.

Tyler said last year the project had former tribal governor Robert Newell's support, but Newell resigned in February. James Stevens was elected new tribal governor.

Tyler said the new tribal administration's attitude about the project has been very volatile, going from indifference, to enthusiasm, back to apparent in-

Stevens told The Citizen last week that the tribe no longer has any plans for a bingo hall the unorganized township. "The time for that has passed," Stevens said. "We're not interested in it anymore. We're not interested in developing a casino down there at all."

Stevens said he had no other comments on the pro-

"The change in the governor has changed their atti-tude toward the project," Tyler said. "in another year it might be different."

The proposed hall generated plenty of controversy last fall when it was first reported in November. Local residents opposed to the project quickly drafted protest petitions.

In January, 40 Albany residents attending a public informational meeting on the proposed hall voiced unanimous opposition to the plan.

The project had been promoted by developers as a fundraiser for Passamaquoddy projects and programs. High-stakes bingo promoters also said the hall could generate up to 40 new jobs and help fill up local restaurants and hotels with up to 700 out-of-town players on 27 off-ski season weekends a year.

Developers needed approval and a zoning change from the Land Use Regulation Committee before the hall could been built. But LURC never received applications for the hall, according to LURC official Catherine Varney.

Great Brook dredger identified

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Robert Lowell of Newry has admitted to hiring local contractor Edward Bennett to bulldoze Great Brook, near Route 26, according to the state Department of Environmental Protection.

The dredging was intended to solve a flooding problem, but the work was undertaken without a permit, and in apparent violation of the state's Natural Resources Protection Act.

The DEP is currently drafting a consent agreement that will call for a formal admission of guilt, restorative measures and a fine, according to DEP enforcement officer Greg Beane.

Lowell told The Citizen that after being frustrated by years of unsuccessful attempts to find a state agency to fix the flooding problem, he finally decided to take matters into his own hands.

"It was a public safety problem," Lowell said of the Route 26 flooding. "It has been going on for years and it's getting worse."

And Lowell predicted that logging in the Brook's watershed by International Paper is likely to make the problem even more severe in the future.

The DEP's Beane agreed with Lowell, at least as far as the flooding problem is concerned. "It seems to me like something needed to be done," Beane said,
"but they went about it all the wrong way. They could have gotten a permit and gone about it in more environmentally sound manner."

Lowell's direct-action aproach to the problem is seldom encountered in the 1990s, Beane said. "As people are made aware of environmental laws, it's pretty rare to see someone put in a bulldozer and dredge a brook."

Lowell said he is waiting to see the consent agreement before deciding what his next step will be.

Someone working in Bear River?

The DEP has also received work of possible illegal dredging in the Bear River.

Beane said the matter has not yet been assigned to an inspector, but if it proves to be true, it would be vigorously pursued.
"I wouldn't be busting my butt to get out to Great Brook and then ignore a report of Bear River being dredged," he said.

Woodstock's Hi-Vu Farm honored

Brad and Carla Phillips of Wood-stock are the 1993 winners of the 1993 Maine Dairy Farm of the Year award.

The Phillips purchased the Hi-Vu farm in 1985. Since then, they have completed numerous conservation practices such as building a manure pit and a heavy use protection area for feeding and exercise. They have also installed a unique roof water management system where all roof run-off is collected. On their land, they have added 3,000 feet of contour strip cropping.

Two rock plunge pools have been built to collect water from road culverts and a spring has been developed into a watering system for their rotational grazing program. The Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District recognized the Phillips for their accomplishments with their 1990 Cooperator of the Year Award.

The herd of registered Holsteins at Hi-Vu Farm has made remarkable progress in the eight years they have been located in Woodstock.

The annual milk production per cow has increased 6,000 lbs. during that span to a present rolling herd average of 21,300. The herd size has nearly doubled during those eight years. Currently there are 60 milking cows and 42 head of young stock at Hi-Vu Farm.

Their daughters, Emily and Lacy, are also very much involved in the farm operation and have recently started to exhibit some of the Hi-Vu cattle at local fairs.

ON BEING NEIGHBORS

Letters

To the Editor: Thanks for your editorial on "Pulling Together" (Citizen Sept. 1). Thanks, too, to area fire departments

Not long ago "community" meant neighborhood or local crossroads, More recently neighborhoods began to understand their interconnection at the top of Main Street. They are as town communities. Today our "community" is at least as large as the boundaries of SAD44, and it is growing rapidly.

The only way for us all to prosper in the future is to bring all of our local town resources to a common table and talk about sharing and cooperation.

FIELD OF DEVELOPMENT DREAMS--Developer Heinie Merrill and Bethel Town Manager Madeleine Henley look over the rear section of town's 6.2-acre lot on Cross Street. Merrill and Sunday River Ski Resort owner Les Otten have offered to purchase the property for inclusion in the proposed 36-acre, $25-million Victoria Station commercial development. Negotiations between the town and the developers are continuing, Henley said, with discussion focussed on the town's options for relocating its facilities. The Bethel Highway Department and Ambulance Service garages are currently located there, as is a saltsand pile that, according to DEP regulations, would have to be housed if it were to be moved.

Powder Ridge extension granted

By WENDY HANSCOM

Newry planners last week granted a one-year extension to the developers of the town's largest subdivi-

The renewal means Glover Development Corp of Bethel will not have to go through the full-scale application process again--even though much of the development remains incomplete three years after the original permits were

The terms of the renewal stipulate that the developers must increase visibility at a "blind hill" in Powder Ridge's Douglass Road before building more than 10 dwelling units beyond that hill,

When Glover officials submitted the renewal application in July, the board questioned the safety of a sharp crest in the Douglass Road.

At the board's last meeting, the developers proposed cutting back the hill when another road is built to intersect at the hummock.

Road Commissioner Virgil "Tink" Conkright told the board last Wednesday that if the road is refigured according to Glover's plan, visibility at the crest will increase from 88 feet to 250-275 feet.

Study

the hill to the other is approximately 88 feet," Conkright said. "That doesn't give you very much time if somebody happens to be in the mid-dle of the road. It's somewhat of a problem, but there isn't much traffic there now either.'

"I would want to monitor it as the work is done," he said. "We might want to make a couple of adjustments as we go." Original plans for the road were approved under the town's old ordinance, which the road meets. But board member Joseph Aloisio said he felt the road should be brought up to the town's new, stiffer ordinance. Chairman Don Sandstrom said it was questionable whether or not the town has any legal right to require that the road be brought up to the town's new standards. Glover had previously said they have "vested rights," or had invested enough money in the project so that bringing the road up to the town's current code would create an undue hardship, Sandstrom told the board. Settling the issue in court would not benefit the town or the developers, he said.

Several board members also said "The visibility from one side of they were worried that as more lots are sold and built on the increased traffic would create an even greater safety hazard.

The board ultimately voted to grant the one-year extension, with the requirement that visibility at the hummock be improved before more than 10 dwelling units are built above the sharp crest.

Glover representatives also presented the board with a letter guaranteeing a $15,000 performance bond to the town.

Proposed glass repair shop The board also reviewed Albert Small's request to open a auto glass epair shop across from the town

Small was asked to provide letters from the town's fire chief and the Oxford County Sheriff's Office stating the agencies could provide protection, and to return to the next meeting for probable approval.

Mrs. Chapman was honored for her long-time service as a guide in the museum since it opened in 1974, as an active member of the Museum Committee since 1974, and as head of the society's Publications Committee. Very interested in historical research, she worked for years with the late Eva Bean on Bethel's history; she presented programs on the history of Main, Park and Church Streets at society meetings which were later published in the "Courier." Long a champion of the annual "So You Think You Know Bethel" contest, she served as a trustee of the society from 1972-73. A frequent contributor to the society's annual fund-raising campaigns, she also has donated a number of artifacts to the collection during her many years of member-Herrick studied economics at the University of Maine and graduated with distinction in May 1993. In 1992 he was the university intern for Sen. William S. Cohen, and he has worked in the senator's offices in Washington, D.C. and Bangor.

A graduate of Edward Little High School, Herrick attended Bridgton Academy in 1988. He is a 17-year resident of Mechanic Falls, but plans to live in downtown Bethel while conducting the study.

Throughout the project, Herrick will work closely with an advisory committee representing many segments of the local community. Members of the committee are: Robin Zinchuk, Mark Hughes, Cathy Newell, Rick Whitney, Don Feeney, Madeleine Henley, Leon Favreau, Jim Sysko, Rolly Ortegan and Ron Kendall.

Anyone interested in learning more about the study or contributing to it may contact Herrick or the committee at the Chamber office.

Assessors

The town is doing the revaluation to update its tax records.

"In Greenwood in particular there are two major goals," O'Donnell said, "to establish the accurate sure the values are consistent. That doesn't exist in Greenwood now." Binette told selectmen last week that he estimated that the revaluation will take about a year to complete.

"We will be making contact with property owners within the next few weeks and, starting with recent sales, develop schedules on which to build," Binette said. After the recent-sales work is done, the assessors will work their way through the town and detail the final property valuations.

Binette said revaluation is not meant to raise taxes. The usual outcome, he said, is that one-third of the town's property value goes up, one-third goes down and one-third stays the same.

O'Donnell said anyone unhappy with their valuation can come into the town office, review the assessors' notes and ask for an explanation and/or another on-site visit.

The assessing team will be staying in town as soon as suitable housing is rented. Berube and Binette will carry identification.

When not in the rotational pasture system, the milking cows are fed a total mixed ration consisting of haylage, corn silage, Maine-grown barley, soybean meal, distillers, and whole cottonseed. This feeding system has helped the Hi-Vu cows produce milk high in total solids, which is indicated by a herd protein test of 3.4 percent and fat test of 3.9 percent.

One home-bred cow has a protein index of 64 pounds and is, therefore, in demand for bull contracts.

Both Brad and Carla are involved in numerous farm and community organizations. Brad is a director and chairperson of the State Farm Bureau Dairy Committee. Carla is vice-chair of the State Farm Bureau Women's Committee, and they both women's Committee, and they both are on the county board of Farm Bureau. Brad is also president of the Oxford County DHIA as well as region director and member of Agri-Mark's Central Hauling Committee Carlois on the accust ASCI. mittee. Carla is on the county ASCS board while Brad is vice-chairperson of the Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation Dis-

Carla is also on the committee that organizes a new statewide ac-tivity in Maine called "Take Pride in Agriculture--Open Farm Day." Hi-Vu Farm is one of more than 80 farms (not just dairy farms) that open their doors to the public on a Sunday in July each year. Brad is also on the Maine Nutrition Council. Even though they are very busy at home, the Phillips still find time to make substantial commitments to the dairy industry in Maine.

The "Dairy Farm of the Year" award is sponsored by the New England Green Pastures Committee. The judges for this year's contest were the previous five winners of this statewide award. The selection tour was arranged by the University of Maine Cooperative Extension.
The Phillips will be recognized on Sept. 17 at Eastern States Exposition along with recipients of this award from each of the other New England states.

The award came about in 1947 when New Hampshire Gov. Charles Dale challenged other New England states to produce better pastures.

Over the years the New England Green Pastures Committee has evolved from promoting pastures and forage management to honoring an outstanding dairy family from each New England state for total management, both production and financial and the families' contribution to the agricultural community.

From the Bethel Police log:

Main Street fight; brewery music bubbles over

Saturday morning, police responded to a report of a fight near the Key Bank. When Bethel police arrived, off-duty Oxford County deputy Phil Taylor had already broken up the fight, according to the log. No charges were logged. Fight participants and witness were asked to complete statements.

Saturday evening, police responded to a report of a loud, profane group of juveniles on Spring Street. Police talked to a group of juveniles in the area, who denied making too much noise.

Late Sunday evening, an anonymous caller reported loud music coming from the Sunday River Brewery. Police called the brewery and an employee assured police the music would be turned down. No further complaints were logged.

Sunday evening, police arrested David L. Rose, 24, of Mechanic Street in connection with the following charges: domestic assault, criminal mischief, possession of marijuana and the assault of Police Chief Dale Bellman and Sargent Darren Tripp.

In other recent police news, on August 24, Mike and Cathy Bennett of Church Street reported that the day after their wedding someone stole wedding cards containing $160 from their Church Street home.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

I have just returned from Bailey Island where all was interesting and fun, even the weather,

Each day the sun rose over the curve of the Bay, where at most times it parted the mists and looked upon the sea. It was a beautiful sight. The mornings I shall never forget. From our cottage windows we could watch all the changes. But of course we didn't stay there all of the time but visited the beaches.

Everywhere the waters flashed a welcome to the sun, glad of the morning light. And nearly always there were sailboats going by or lobster boats at work. These boats signaled their own peculiar greetings to the new-come day. The sun then moved on, leaving the boats to follow a lighted pathway beyond. I presume the sun glinted all along the northern coast and bent slivers of light to all places. Rocks, sand or tides were always present. One made by convulsions in the earth, another by gravity and time and the third by the moon and the sun. These are the ingredients that make up a special world along

One day the children had fun picking up spider crabs and taking them to little ponds which they made in the sand. To some they gave names. They picked up 40 or more of them.

Greenwood on Monday, Aug. 30 to Later they returned all of them to the help Charlotte with some work that sea.

The kelp was interesting. It has a short, strong, single stalk from the top of which bursts a cluster of many strap-like strands. At low Hathaway was a dinner guest at water the strands float on the surface like pieces of harness. Therefore it is called horesetail kelp. It gives off a sharp sea smell of aromatic piney

We of course went to Lands End several times, but not always to shop. It was so lovely there that we often just sat and watched. Two evenings there were underwater divers which were interesting to watch. The scenery, too, was wonderful.

We did many other things like swimming and beach combing but the time came to leave for home, so we loaded our possessions and left.

When I came into my yard a deer was under my apple tree to welcome me home. On Sunday the Holt family was at home: Robert, Jeri, Jennett of Windsor, David of Norway and Ann. Other callers were Mr. and Mrs. Fran Piccirillo and daughter Lisa. Mr. and Mrs. John Betts were in Portsmouth on Monday.

Rena Curtis called on me on Monday and brought me blackberries and blueberries. Eleanor Inman visited Sunday evening.

Mornings will find our new crossing guard, Lisa Beebe, keeping an eye on children as they cross the road. Linda Ames will be her substitute. In the classrooms we are welcoming Ms. Wendy Riley, the Chapter I math teacher. Ms. Riley will be working directly with classroom teachers with our Math in Stride program. Mrs. Cindy Mullen holds the position of teacher assistant, working mainly with Mrs. Merrill in grade two. Mrs. Susan Emerson is doing her practice teaching with me in the fifth grade, Mrs. Emerson is in the education program at Norwich University in Vermont. We are delighted to have her. Mrs. Natalie Santaquida is not new to SAD17, but has a return assignment to our two schools, and we are very pleased to welcome her back. Mrs. Denise Biggers is our new kindergarten teacher, and we are welcoming her and all her brand new students. We expect them to have a totally successful year, Several other students are either new, or returning to, our school. We are glad to have among us, Stephanie Hayes and James Ring, grade one; Danella DeLancy, grade two; Ashley Hamel, Sayannah Hamel and Joshua Pennington, grade three; Derrick DeLancy and Jacob Mallory, grade four; Michael Johnson, grade five and Justine Pennington, grade six. Welcome all. Upcoming Dates and Activities

Tuesday, Sept. 14, will be our annual Open House for grades two through six. Grades K and one held an open house before school began. However, they will be welcome on the 14th also, as we will be having a book fair all week, and it will be open from 6 to 7 p.m., the time of the open house. Please plan to attend to meet your children's teachers and to find out what is going on in the classrooms. Our first Scholastic Book Fair will be held from Monday, Sept. 13

There won't be another book fair before Christmas, so perhaps now would be a good time to stock up. Beginning in October, the Parent Volunteer Group plan to hold their meetings on the first Tuesday of the month. They will be held in the library, probably at 6:30, but do watch for announcements.

Speaking of announcements: At this time of year there are a great number of announcements, forms to fill out, and a variety of papers coming home almost daily. Parents, please be on the lookout for these

Our Parent Volunteer Coordinator Michelle Blake was in this week to check out our immediate needs for volunteers in the classroom, Michelle has our list of room mothers ready for the 1993-94 school year. We already send our thanks to these mothers: Shelly Tikander, kindergarten; Lisa Beebe and Deanna Abbott, grade one: Darlene Pilgrim, grade two; Jean Richards, grade three; Barbara Shead, grade four; Elaine Newell and Dixie Inman, grade five; Kim Inman and Michelle Blake, grade six. Our volunteers are not limited to mothers, so do not feel shy about volunteering. We do have a very active group of volunteers, and Mrs. Blake is the person to contact if you would like more information.

If you have driven by our school recently you will have noticed a new paint job. The front of the school certainly looks great. Also, there has been a lot of effort and hard work put in to establish a basketball court for our playground. This project has been spearheaded by Greg Inman, with help and donations from many others. The children are really looking forward to this corner of the playground. It should be ready before many more days go by. Many, many thanks to Greg and all the others who have made this a reality.

EXTENSION OFFERS MASTER

COMPOSTER PROGRAM

Those interested in utilizing their yard and kitchen wastes more effectively will be interested in a new program being offered by the University of Maine Cooperative Extension. The Master Composter Workshop provides 12 hours of intensive training and materials in exchange for 30 hours of volunteer work in local communities.

"The time is coming when town dumps will no longer accept yard wastes," said Barbara Murphy, Extension Educator in Oxford County, so this program provides an excellent opportunity to teach the public how to turn their waste materials into valuable compost.

Upon completion of the course, the graduates will then volunteer 30 hours of time in educational activities designed to help both individuals and groups who are interested in learning more about composting.

The Master Composter program will be held Mondays, Sept. 13, 20 and 27, and Wednesday, Sept. 29 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Oxford County Extension Office, 9 Olson Rd., So. Paris. There is no fee for the course and class size is limited to 25. For further information or to register for the course, call the Extension Office at 743-6329 or 1-

The Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War 1861-1865 Hannah F. Richardson Tent No. 19 met here on Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. with six members present. It was a very informal meeting. Discussion and reports were made about the National Convention which was held in Oklahoma City, Okla., this summer. Also, a discussion was held about the special reenactment which will take place on Capitol Park in Augusta on Saturday, Sept. 11. Some members will be leaving early Saturday morning to attend this, and it is requested that members make some large molasses cookies to be taken to this program. They should be made and picked up on Friday. For further information, please call Leslie Dean at 928-2611. The meeting was adjourned and the next meeting will be on Sept. 22 at the K.

GOING BY THE BOARD-The Bethel Planning Board is scheduled to review an after-the-fact application tonight (Wednesday) for the band stage at Sunday River Brewing Company on Route 2 (left). The stage was constructed without Planning Board approval, according to town planning assistant Nancy Schlieper. Schlieper also noted that during the Initial Planning Board review of the project, the developers had explicitly stated that there would be no live outside entertainment at the site.

It's not always easy to see the good in your child, especially after he's redone the living room in Crayola Modern.

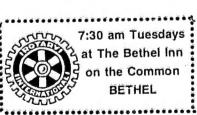

But today's mess can become tomorrow's masterpiece when you know what to look for.

September 19th and 26th at 6:00 pm at the Bethel Alliance Church, Zig Ziglar's film "Raising Positive Kid's in a Negative World" will be shown. Sept. 19th-Parts 1&2, Sowing Positive Seeds, and How to be a Positive Parent. Sept. 26-Parts 3&4, Channeling God's Beautiful Gift, Love is Spelled T-I-M-E.

Please plan on coming to this community event. At the Bethel Alliance Church we care about you and your children and that's why we are showing this film at no cost. So come enjoy and learn!

The Bethel Alliance Church is "A Place To Belong"

BRIEF BREAK--Rick and Micki Hoddinott, the new owners of Mt. Abram, and marketing director Eric Austin (right) take a break in front of the newly painted base lodge (it's now red). The new owners have undertaken a number of improvements for the coming year, including a doubling of the snowmaking capacity, new ski terrain, a snowboard half-pipe, and general sprucing up around the base lodge. But Austin said they will still target Mt. Abram's traditional market-by offering good value, family oriented skling in a relaxed, user-friendly atmosphere. Mt. Abram is aiming for an early December opening, but a ski instructor clinic is planned for Sept. 25 and 26 and a Winter Warm-up Weekend for Oct. 23 and 24. The Locke Mills ski area currently has six full-time employees but plans to start building its winter staff next month. The Hoddinotts, of Readfield, are part of a group of investors, many of them long-time Mt. Abram skiers, who purchased the ski area from Oxford Bank and Trust in June.

Gould welcomes new faculty

Seven new faculty members were greeted at a Gould Academy reception at the Sudbury Inn Thursday, Sept. 2, officially kicking off the school year. New students arrive today for four days of orientation before classes begin Monday.

Alexey Loshkarev traveled furthest to come to Gould. A native of Moscow, Mr. Loshkarev joins Gould as the second Fulbright Fellow in three years. He has taught for 12 years in Ethiopia, Tanzania, and in the Moscow secondary system. He plans to use his American experience to help him discover new ways to teach physics and English when he returns to his native Moscow.

Dana L. Breslau teaches mathematics and computer science and coaches skiing and lacrosse, A precocious undergraduate, she began her teaching and coaching while competing in two varsity sports, coaching the dryland training program for the ski team, and directing the Big/Little Sister Program. During the summer she has worked as a computer programmer, Dana holds a B.A. from the University of Massachusetts.

Patricia S. Bunt teaches chemistry and coaches skiing and cycling. After six years as an engineer for Union Carbide, she switched to teaching and began her career at Phillips Exeter Academy, where she instructed for two years in chemistry and physics and for one year at the H.P. Baldwin High chool in Hawaii. She will reside on campus with her husband, who is a native of Maui.

Andrea L. Morrison comes to Gould to teach mathematics, after A.B. and M.A. degrees from Princeton University and the State University of New York at Stony Brook. Andrea is not new to teaching, as her record as an outstanding graduate school lecturer and instructor attests. Experience as assistant director of a Girl Scout summer camp and classical music DJ at Princeton helped to round out her undergraduate career.

Paul Nelson, new music program director, has extensive experience as a voice performer, music educator and advocate for the arts through a fiveyear association with the Cincinnati Opera. He has been involved with various kinds of youth organizations in his home state of Michigan, where he and his wife Elizabeth, who is also a professional singer, own and operate a summertime business, The Florence Bed and Breakfast.

David A. Sigel teaches art and coaches soccer and tennis. He began his Gould teaching career in the 1993 Summer School after working for a year in Boston restoring and renovating historical buildings. The Boston University graduate has teaching in his blood and brings youth and enthusiasm for drawing and painting to an already strong art department as well as to Holden Hall where he serves as dormitory counselor.

Sara E. Whalen teaches English and English as a Second Language. A 1988 Gould graduate, she returned to Bethel as an intern in the 1991 and 1992 Summer Schools and an administrative assistant during the winter of 1992-93. Currently she serves as yearbook adviser and dormitory counselor in Gehring Hall in addition to carrying out teaching and coaching duties.

Debby Gilbert joins the health staff after prior service at Stephens Memorial Hospital and most recently at Maine Medical Center in Portland where she worked in the neonatal department. She lives in Newry with her husband Randy and children.

Federal grant could boost local wood products industry

By CHRISTINE SEVERSON

A $600,000 federal wood science research grant awarded to the University of Maine is intended to spur research that will help Maine's $4 billion a year wood products industry remain competitive.

Maine's congressional delegation has announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has awarded the grant to fund research into wood science and engineering.

Those involved in the research projects say they will look for new, higher value uses for Maine's wood

Locally, this research could translate into an economic boost for the Maine wood industry, according to Dr. Stephen Shaler, an associate professor in the Forest Management Department at the University of

"If we can help the (woodproduction) plants start to use red maple, this could mean more harvesting, more logging, more jobs... and, of course, by making a plant more productive, more efficient, you ensure that the plant will keep running. In the long-term, ideally, perhaps a new recycling plant," Shaler said.

According to proposal excerpts released by the university, the grant will fund six areas of research: insect-antifeedants from birch bark, high-yield pulping, composite material for timber bridges, wood preservation, wood biodegradation, and wood-based composites.

The proposal excerpts indicate that these six projects all reflect a crucial economic need for the state of Maine: the need to continue the forest-resource based economy at a competitive level, while employing and maintaining conservation efforts.

Shaler is involved with two of the six projects: wood-based composites and the timber bridge composite research.

"The overall goal is to find new, higher value use of Maine wood species," he said.

The research will be conducted in collaboration with the universities of Vermont and New Hampshire. And although the grant is for collaborative work among the three northeastern universities, Maine will be "taking the lead in the three-point group," according to Dr. Barry Goodell, associate professor of wood spinger and technology of of wood science and technology at the University of Maine,

The interdisciplinary research will involve a number of different university departments, and will focus we can test it here, at a lower cost on exploring ways to more effi- and with less waste," Shaler said.

ciently use the Northeast region's timber resources, Goodell said.

The USDA has granted similar research grants to Mississippi State, Oregon State and Michigan State universities.

However, according to Goodell, although the research done here in the Northeast will complement current research at these universities, the University of Maine will concentrate mainly on wood species native to the Northeast region, such as spruce, fir, pine and northern hardwoods.

Goodell stressed the need for modern technology to concentrate on discovering ways to make more product with less waste,

The timber bridge project, for example, will focus on ways to maintain high structural strength while using timber beams smaller than the large beams normally used in the construction of these bridges.

The project will involve combining laminated lumber with fiberreinforced plastics, such as carbon-epoxy, to improve the performance of the construction beams. This will allow smaller size trees to be used in the construction of the bridges.

We no longer have wood of that size... and the trees we do have of that size we want to keep standing. We can use smaller resources, using modem designs," Goodell said.

Fiber Materials in Biddeford will be collaborating with the university on this project.

Shaler said some of the money from the grant would go to purchasing state-of-the-art equipment, such as a densitometer-a machine that measures density variation with a beam of gamma particles--and a position-controlled hot press.

The densitometer will help to better determine the quality of the material, and will serve as a valuable tool for assessing and improving manufacturing processes.

The hot press will allow manufacturers to make lab-scale products. This will help manufacturers determine the strength of alternative, abundant wood sources for products now being manufactured from diminishing wood supplies.

Producing and testing the lab-scale products would replace the costly method of testing the new products on a commercial scale.

"As pressure mounts to augment the use of the aspen supply with other, lesser-used species, industry may turn to the more abundant red maple. As industry starts using another species, with this equipment

The new equipment purchased with the money from the grant will be accessible to both undergraduate and graduate students at the University of Maine.

"This will help expose them to some of the newest technology out there, making the students more desirable for industry," Shaler said. The university grants both undergraduate and graduate degrees in wood products manufacturing.

Funds from the grant will also go towards research into ways to improve products made from recycled

According to Shaler, although a substantial amount of recycled fiber is used in the paper industry, the wood industry does not use much of this material because of the low availability and the lower quality products that result.

"The markets for recycled material need to grow and be profitable. A large market needs a continuing supply... Maybe we can increase the quality of recycled material composite products, and suggest an incremental increase in the use of recycled materials. One of the advantages of composites is that you can use small trees, so you don't need old-growth timber." Shaler said.

Composite materials are made from a combination of wood, recycled fibers and plastics.

Shaler said that three major industrial companies have expressed interest in working with the composite research project: Georgia-Pacific in Woodland, Louisiana Pacific in Houlton, and J.M. Huber in Easton, Goodell commented on the eventual effects of the woodscience research.

These, and the other projects on this grant will together provide a base for improving the utilization of the northern New England forests, and help maintain the region's forest industry development as we move into the next century," he

DEP CLEAN AIR WORKSHOP FOR SMALL BUSINESS

The Maine Department of Environmental Protection is developing a program to help small businesses comply with the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990. The new "Small Business Technical Assistance Program" will be the focus of a workshop scheduled Tuesday, Sept. 14, in Auburn. DEP air quality specialists will conduct the session, asking participants to help shape the program by identifying

The workshop, which is cosponsored by the Androscoggin County Chamber of Commerce and the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments, will be held at the Council offices, 125 Manley Road, Auburn, from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. and again from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m.

On September 1, 1993, new Federal rules and regulations for cable television go into effect. Some current cable rates and charges will be adjusted at that time. Federal Communications Commission (FCC) guidelines require cable companies to redistribute charges in some areas, and list separate charges for programming and equipment.

These adjustments are being implemented so that we can comply with Federal regulations. Although effective on September 1, the changes may not show up in billing statements until October.

PLEASANT VALLEY BIBLE CHURCH BEGINS AWANA

Pleasant Valley Bible Church will begin the sixth year of AWANA on Sept. 17. The AWANA Club is a Christian youth club similar to Boy/Girl Scouts, Clubbers earn the privilege to wear uniforms and then earn pins and awards with further achievement. Weekly meetings are divided into Story Time, Handbook Time and Game Time, Programs are divided into groups to meet developmental levels. Cubbies are for pre-schoolers; Sparks are for children in K through grade two; Clubbers are for three- to sixth-graders.

There are many special events planned throughout the year. The club participates in Regional Olympics (games) in the late winter, there is a grand prix race with pinewood cars, an auction, and this year a Fall Fair.

The club meets on Fridays, Cubbics and Sparks meet at 3 p.m. (the Flat Road bus will drop off children) and Clubbers meet at 6:30

All meetings are at Pleasant Valley Bible Church on the Flat Road in West Bethel. For further information call 836-2828 or 824-

COUNTY RETIRED TEACHERS

The Oxford County Retired Teachers will meet at the Norway Universalist Church on Saturday, Sept. 18. The social period starts at 10:30 a.m., business meeting at 11. The afternoon speaker will be John Kimball, who will speak on legislative problems with retirement funding. The scholarship fund-raiser will be a $1 donation.

Card of Thanks

A thank you to my family and the Church and Chapel Aid friends who planned my birthday party. I appreciate your calls, the many cards and well wishes. Again thank

Olive A. Head

Card of Thanks

Thanks so much to all those who made my recent birthday such a memorable time. I am also grateful to all who sent cards and took it easy on me during the "roast". I am especially indebted to my sister-in-law Diane for making the special cake and providing the special decorations. Thanks are also due Rudy Honkala for providing the video record for history.
